Join us for a talk with Simon Schuster to learn more about how money flows through political campaigns. This is a joint event with the Peace Education Center, the LWVLA, and the MSU School of Journalism. Please share this information with your friends and neighbors.

Simon D. Schuster joined the Michigan Campaign Finance Network as executive director in November 2019.

Before that, he worked as a journalist for the Michigan Information & Research Service (MIRS News), an online news service covering politics and policy in state government, and as a freelance reporter for The Washington Post and The Detroit News. He has also worked as a data analyst and researcher.

Simon received a bachelor's and a Master of Public Public Policy degree from Michigan State University, where he worked as a graduate policy fellow at the Institute for Public Policy and Social Research.
