So you've always wondered about Citizen Science, but don't know where to begin? Join us for an interactive, fun introduction to three Citizen Science Programs! We'll begin with a brief presentation indoors and then head outside (weather permitting) to practice Citizen Science in action!

Dress for the delightful Michigan Spring weather (rain coat/boots, hats, gloves)!

Did you know you could help contribute to the scientific data that makes sense of our world, just by making observations or participating in nature-related activities? If you've always wondered about Citizen Science, but don't know where to begin, join us for this interactive, fun, introduction.
