East Lansing – Exploring an environmentally sustainable future with a special focus on solar energy is the theme of a Lansing Area League of Women Voters program scheduled for 7 p.m. Wednesday, October 18, at Edgewood United Church, 497 North Hagadorn Road, East Lansing.

Representatives of the Lansing Board of Water and Light (John Krzystowczyk), Consumers Energy (Elody Samuelson), Great Lakes Renewable Energy Association (John Sarver) and Michigan Interfaith Power and Light (Jim Detjen) will participate. This panel will speak about solar energy options for individuals, as well as public institutions and businesses, and address its challenges and opportunities.

A question-and-answer period and planning for further discussion will follow. For additional information, contact Deanna Haieski, at
